To be honest or not to be?

A long time ago, there was a woodcutter named John. One day, he went chopping woods with his brother Jeff. John was wearing a torn grass hat and a vest. Jeff was wearing a pair of jeans and boots.

All in a sudden, a strong burst of wind came by and blew John's hat into the river. John was very worried because it was his only hat. Just then, the god of the river appeared. He was in the white gown. 'Is this hat yours?' God said, holding a leather hat. 'Yes!' said John, 'I am just looking for it!' 'Are you sure?' doubted God. 'Just give it to me.' shouted John. 'You are lying. You have a grass hat but not a leather one.' Said God, 'I will turn you into a frog and you will stay in that well forever!' John begged God not to do that but it was too late. He already became a frog and God threw him into the well.

No one knows where John is now, but one thing is certain: He must have lived unhappily ever after.
