My Dream Job

I want to be a computer programmer when I grow up because I think this job is very interesting and challenging. If I become a computer programmer, I will write codes for designing computer programs, software applications or mobile apps.

Computer programmers need to be creative and innovative so that they can always brainstorm ideas frequently for creating and designing new software and applications. They also need to have excellent analytical and problem-solving skills so that they can solve all technical issues aroused in the designing process of the software and applications. They also need to be good at doing sums and have enough knowledge of STEAM so they can use what they have learnt to develop new computer programs.

To make my dream come true, I need to study hard and read more books about computer science. I hope I can realize my dream in the future.
