The Supermarket Chaos

Last Saturday, May and Danny wanted to buy some hairy crabs for their party. Mum said, 'I will give you three thousand and five dollars to pay for the hairy crabs. You two will have to go by yourselves. Remember to be careful of the hairy crabs' claws.' Then, May and Danny said goodbye to their mum and Dad drove them to city's super supermarket.

When Danny and May arrived, they found out that they had to buy a carton of orange juice as well. Danny said, 'Let's buy Fresh Orange Juice, so we can get a free mango.' 'We have two boxes of mangoes. Let's buy River Orange Juice. It's more delicious than Fresh Orange Juice. It's also the cheapest kind of orange juice in this supermarket. It's only fifteen dollars forty,' May explained. Danny said, 'Okay then, let's buy it.' While they were walking to the seafood counter, they saw their friend's mum. They waved at her, and she saw them. She asked, 'May I come with you?' Danny agreed and they continued walking.

When they arrived at the seafood counter, Danny put his finger into a hairy crab tank. A hairy crab used its claw to snap him. He screamed loudly.

Luckily, their friend's mum was a doctor and used some bandage to wrap his finger. In the end, Danny felt better and they bought some hairy crabs. Everyone was happy.
