To be honest or not to be

There were two woodcutters, Joe and Bob, who worked as woodcutters in Prayer Forest. Joe and Bob were cutting down oak trees near the Holy Ocean. Joe was in the ugly shirt, old pants and horse-skin hair. Bob was in the black shirt, mauve pants and patched hat.

By late afternoon, Bob wanted to go home and chillax with some root beer, but Joe convinced him to work until dawn. Suddenly, while Joe was leaning on his axe and smoking a pipe, he dropped his spare underpants, which was heat trapping and made of fake fur, into the Holy Ocean. An annoying shark named Kinsey suddenly stuck his ugly head out of the water and gobbled up Joe's undies. Seeing Kinsey eating reminded Bob that he was hungry.

Consequently, he left Joe sobbing by the ocean and headed to Taco Bell for dinner.

Unexpectedly, a priest name Jim passed by. He heard Joe's pitiful sobbing and decided to help him. With a flick of his arm, he conjured up some cactus undies and asked Joe, ‘Are these yours?’ When Joe saw the undies, he got so excited and shouted, ‘Yes! They’re mine!’ Using his great Christian powers, Jim detected that the undies were not Joe’s, so he threw him to the man-eating sharks as a punishment!
