To be honest or Not to be

Once upon a time, there were two girls, Jerry and Lily. Jerry was a girl in a dotted sweatshirt and a red skirt. Lily was a girl with a ponytail and in a short-sleeved T-shirt. They were good friends.

One day, the two girls went fishing near the river. All of a sudden, Jerry's plastic earrings fell in the river accidentally. Lily's wood comb fell in the river too. 'Oh no! I cannot lose my earrings!' cried Jerry.

Suddenly, the God of the river, Tom, appeared. He was a man with curly blonde hair. Tom took a pair of gold earrings. Jerry said, 'They are mine.' Tom was angry and he didn't give them to her. Then Tom took out a gold comb, a silver comb and a wood comb. 'The wood comb is mine.' Lily exclaimed. Tom's face lit up, 'You are as honest as a mirror. I will give all these combs to you for presents.'

Lily begged the God to forgive Jerry. Jerry promised that she would be honest in future. The God smiled and returned the earrings to Jerry.

In the end, they thanked the God for helping them find their things and reminding them to be an honest person.
