To be honest or Not to be

Honesty is the one of the highest forms of respect. Today I am going to write about the dishonest woodcutter William in this story.

Once upon a time, there were two boys, William and Eric. They were woodcutters in Magic Forest. One day William and Eric were cutting some wood near a river. William was in a torn T-shirt and black shorts. Eric was in a blue checked shirt and torn trousers.

At night, Eric felt extremely tired and wanted to go back home but William convinced him to work for a little longer. Suddenly, when William was cutting wood, he dropped his stone axe into the river. William was really worried as it was his only axe and he couldn't get it back. Eric told William that he was tired and went home first. William was left alone by the river.

Out of nowhere, a fairy of the river, Lisa appeared. Lisa asked, 'Why do you look so worried?' 'I dropped my stone axe into the river and I can't cut wood,' said William. Lisa went into the river and came out with a brand new golden axe. 'Is this yours?' asked Lisa. 'Yes!' screamed William, lying through his teeth. 'No, it isn't yours! You only had a stone axe, not a golden axe! You are such a greedy person. I will turn you into a fly forever!' said the fairy. In a flash, William became a fly.

The woodcutter's dishonesty led to his downfall, showing that being truthful is always the best choice.
