A Lesson for Sam

Today, mum is as busy as a bee. She is hanging up the clothes, sweeping the floor and watering the plants. But Sam is not helpful. He is as lazy as a pig. He is lying on the sofa and watching TV now. Mum asks Sam, "Can you help me with the housework, Sam?" "Sorry mum. I am busy watching TV and my favourite video is starting," says Sam. "But I will help you later." Then, mum goes to do the housework by herself.

Later, Sam's mum is too tired. She starts to feel sick and she gets a fever. Sam is worried because no one will clean the house now. He says to himself, "What should I do? I don't clean the house before so I do not know how to do housework!" He pauses for a moment and starts to think.

In the end, Sam tidies his toys in the living room so the living room won't be messy again and no one will trip over the toys. He says, "I hope Mum will be happy after this."

When mum wakes up, she sees the living room being so tidy. She says to Sam, "Oh my, the living room is so tidy. Good Boy!" Sam and Mum feel happy. Sam feels even happier than mum because he learns a lesson that being tidy is very important. Sam thinks, "I will be tidy from now on. Every day, Sam tidies his toys now, unlike before. He is a good boy now. He will be a good helping hand at home too."
