Tennis Ball in a Fountain

Mandy is a hard-working student, as hard-working as an ant. She has Brownies on Tuesdays, plays tennis on Thursdays and has piano lessons on Fridays. She is as busy as a bee too.

On a sunny Saturday morning, Mandy and her best friend, Winnie, go to a local park to play tennis. After a while, Mandy accidentally hits the ball too hard. The ball falls into the fountain. Then, Mandy yells, ‘Oh no! How do we get the ball back?’ ‘I have an idea,’ replies Winnie. Then Winnie asks a security guard, ‘Can you help us get the tennis ball, please?’ Winnie says while pointing to the fountain. ‘Of course!’ answers the security guard.

Mandy, Winnie and the security guard go to the fountain. Then, the security guard picks up a long stick. He brings the ball closer and closer. Finally, he uses his arm to fetch the ball. The two friends are happy like monkeys that have trillions of bananas when they get the ball and say ‘Thank you!’ to the security guard. Mandy and Winnie learn that they should play tennis in a tennis court but not near a fountain in a park.
