Going to a Country Park

Last Sunday, Mary and Tom decided to go to Sai Kung Country Park and have a picnic. ‘Let’s go!’ Tom said.

On the way to the country park, they saw a hiker. Mary asked, ‘How far is it from here to Sai Kung Country Park by bus?’ ‘It’s 10 kilometres,’ the hiker answered. Mary thought that going to the country park by bus would be too crowded. Tom said,

‘Let’s go there by taxi! It’s as fast as a flash.’ ‘Minibus is fast too! And taxis are expensive!’ Mary shouted. They started to argue. Fifteen minutes later, they finally apologized to each other. Tom said, ‘Let’s take a minibus. I agree with you.’

At last, they arrived at Sai Kung Country Park and enjoyed their picnic. They learnt that they should communicate well and make compromises to solve problems.
