An Extra Option

Last Sunday, Mary and Tom were at home and wanted to go hiking. Mary said, "Let's go to Fun Country Park." Tom answered, "Good idea!"

On the way to Fun Country Park, they met a hiker who had just finished hiking. Mary asked, "How far is Fun Country Park from here?" The hiker replied, "It's a long way. It's ten kilometres from here."

"Let's take the bus. It's cheap and we can see the great view from it," said Mary. Tom replied, "Buses are always crowded. Let's take a taxi. It's fast and comfortable." "How about taking the taxi to get there? We can take the bus when we come back," Mary suggested. Tom agreed, "Good idea!"

In the end, they were as happy as a clam while hiking. They also learnt there was always an extra option.
